1. SCOPE

BAE Systems is seeking Expressions of Interest (EOI) to provide specialist Project support services in support of AH-1Z Viper Armed Reconnaissance Helicopter (ARH).

Bell Textron Incorporated (Bell) and BAE Systems teamed in February 2016 in order to offer Bell's AH-1Z Viper to the Commonwealth of Australia as the replacement for the Armed Reconnaissance Helicopter. Bell's new generation AH-1Z Viper, with its Cobra heritage, is a mature, off-the-shelf, proven and highly capable manned combat helicopter that will deliver all of Army's Reconnaissance, Attack and Security effects in the close and deep contested battlespace. Viper is available, capable, interoperable and affordable to deliver all ADF mission effects and rapidly achieve operational milestones.

Together, as 'Team Zulu Viper' (Team Z Viper), Bell and BAE Systems have integrated their expert capabilities to establish a robust and experienced team ready to partner with Defence and Australian Defence Industry to deliver an FMS or FMS/DCS contract in the first five years.

BAE Systems is the responsible lead for Through Life, Sustainment and Training Support for Viper within Australia. Therefore, we are seeking expressions of interest from Australian Industry for potential support for the project.

Suppliers will be required to supply specialist project support for one or part there of the following:

- ASDEFCON tender response development,
- Safety hazard analysis and or risk assessment, and
- Earned value management.

The purpose of the Pre-Qualification Questionnaire is to establish the feasibility of prospective Australia based industrial partners to provide support services to BAE Systems for the ARH Replacement Program in order maximize local Australian Industry Capability.
