At Origin Energy, what sets us apart is not what we do, but how we do it. Our Compass outlines the Purpose, Principles, Values and Commitments which guide our actions and choices. We make decisions knowing they cannot always be attractive to everyone, but that they effectively and appropriately balance the competing demands that exist for more and cleaner sources of energy globally, and a changing social, environmental and technological landscape.

Origin commits to respecting the rights and interests of the communities in which we operate by listening to them, and understanding and managing the environmental, economic and social impacts of our activities.
